1 What Is A Cookie?

Cookies are text files containing small amounts of information that computers or mobile devices download when you visit a website. When you return to these websites or visit other websites that use the same cookies the cookies are recognised and as a consequence your browsing device is identified and known.

Cookies help websites to do a variety of different jobs, such helping you navigate between pages quickly and efficiently, or remembering your preferences and improving your browsing experience. They can also help ensure the advertisements you see online are more relevant to you and your interests.

2 What Types Of Cookies Do We Use?

The type of cookies used on this website can be categorised into 4 groups, based on the International Chamber of Commerce (ICC) guide for cookie categories: Strictly Necessary, Performance, Functionality and Targeting.

Strictly Necessary Cookies

Strictly Necessary Cookies are essential and needed to enable you to navigate our websites and access secure content. Without these cookies, website features, functions and/or the services you asked for, such as internet banking facilities, cannot be provided. These cookies only enable website function and do not gather any information about you for profiling or targeted marketing purposes. The Strictly Necessary Cookie category cannot be disabled using the cookies preference selection on your browser and/or this website.

Performance Cookies

Performance Cookies collect anonymous information about how visitors use our websites. For example, which pages visitors go to most often, and if they get error messages from web pages. Performance Cookies do not collect personally identifiable information (PII). The information collected is anonymous and only used to improve website performance.

Performance Cookies are not used to target you with online advertising. Without them we cannot learn how our website is performing, identify and fix any UX/UI and performance related issues and/or make relevant enhancements to improve your experience when using our online services.

Functionality Cookies

Functionality cookies allow our websites to remember your choices (for example, your user name, language or the region you're in) and tailor the website to provide enhanced features and content that are relevant to you. Functionality Cookies can also be used to remember customisation changes you may make (such as text size or fonts). They may also be used to provide specific services you may want, like watching a video or commenting on a blog. The information these cookies collect is anonymous and cannot be used to track your browsing activity on other websites.

Without these cookies, our website cannot remember choices you've previously made or personalise your browsing experience.

Targeting Cookies

Targeting Cookies gather information about your browsing habits. They remember you visited a website and can share this information with advertisers and other entities. They provide you with advertisements that are more relevant to you and your interests. Although these cookies can track your visits to other websites, they do not typically know who you are.

Disabling these cookies will not stop online advertisements from being displayed. But, without these cookies the online advertisements being displayed may be less relevant to you and your interests.
